Redfish farming

Aquaculture project off and swimming in county

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has approved a $10 million industrial development bond issue for a redfish farm to be located near Ansley.

The farm is proposed by Robert Hunt, who already owns The Redfish Hatchery Inc. in Pass Christian. Hunt said he located the 1,470-acre

Hunt filed a patent application last year.

Hunt's system is designed to supersaturate well water with oxygen to increase the number of fish each acre can support. Traditional systems generally can grow 5,000 to 7,500 pounds of fish per acre, but this particular system is expected to increase that amount to about 500,000 to to next year's anticipated closing of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant currently being operated at Stennis Space Center under a contract with Mason-Chamberlain, Inc.

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce President Randy Castello said, "I think it's great news; anything which will bring more jobs, more tax dollars and more income into the community will be most helpful."

"Mr. Hunt is the first person I have met to take a technology like this and, while other people are still studying it, he's doing it."

"This takes away from the myth of the good old boy in his coveralls with his chaw of tobacco," he added. It shows again that we've got some pretty sharp, technology minded people here in Mississippi."

site for the new facility, which he will call Sea Fresh Farms Inc., with the assistance of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Industrial development bonds, according to Board Attorney Gerald Gex, must be issued through the county but repaid by the developer. Therefore, the county is under no obligation.

In addition to producing about one million pounds of seafood annually, Hunt said he expects the business to provide about 300 jobs initial-

1.5 million.

Construction of several ponds to be used for growing fish will begin as soon as possible and is expected to take six to eight months.

Support facilities, which will include a feed mill, processing plant, quick-freezing plant, frozen storage, an electricity and steam cogeneration plant and a liquification facility for oxygen as well as nitrogen to cool the water and use in processing, will be added later.

Hunt also plans to have several usable byproducts, such as saleable feeds and fish meal, saleable electricity and liquid gases, and nutrient-loaded water which can be used for growing vegetables and other produce after its aquaculture uses end.

Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas, along with Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold Olsen, praised Hunt's efforts to bring the redfish farm to Hancock County.

Olsen said he is pleased with the employment possibilities and advances aquaculture techniques the facility offers.

"This can have a great impact on the county," Cuevas said, "especially when we've got some times coming up when the ammo plant is expected to have an adverse effect." Cuevas was referring

Campaign to reverse flag decision underway

BY D.C. HARVILL

Bay St. Louis American Legion Post 139 and a local business woman are "hot under the collar" about the recent Supreme Court decision that permits burning of the American flag have started a statewide campaign to have the decision overturned.

Allyson Keller of Jolly Rogers Printing is printing and circulating, at her own expense, petitions asking for protection of the flag.

The court's decision states that the right of someone to burn the flag is a First Amendment-protected freedom of expression. "For me it is not a First Amendment right. There is a difference—flag burning is an obscenity," Keller said.

"We the people of the Great State of Mississippi, Citizens of the United States of America, demand that all legal actions be followed to protect our Flag. The Symbol of the United States of America, from physical desecration," the petition says.

Bay Councilman and Legionnaire John Wilkerson will circulate the petition at the Mississippi American Legion Convention in Jackson next week and ask that the state organization go on the record as opposed to the decision.

"I can only speak for Post 139, but we are hot under the collar. I think the Supreme Court over-stepped their bounds. It is a dishonor to every man who ever died or served in the military," Wilkerson said.

Keller, a former New Orleans police officer who helped fold the flag that draped her slain partner's casket, said, "When you go through that kind of thing it is just an obsession to think someone is going to burn the flag that has covered the coffin of so many who have given their lives."

The campaign was formally kicked off Tuesday, the Fourth of July, with a ceremony at Jolly Rogers, attended by local officials, policemen and firefighters. The front of the building was adorned with a giant American flag.

Since Friday, she has mailed 800 petitions to people throughout the state, Keller said.

"As far as I know, we are the first state to organize this. I encourage everyone to come get a petition," Keller said.

This isn't just for the Legion, we hope the D.A.V. and V.F.W. will join us," Wilkerson said.

Keller will continue printing the petitions as long as people will sign them, she added.

Jolly Rogers' address is serving as the drop-off point for the petitions. The address is 837 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Washboard Leo:

Will have benefit hopping

BY D.C. HARVILL

Children of all ages are in for a strange and wonderful time Saturday when "Washboard" Leo Thomas leads them on a musical tour through the mythical kingdom of the Nutria-Frogs.

The Mandeville native's charming musical tales are inspired by his experiences in the swamps surrounding that community on the north shore of Lake Ponchartrain.

Thomas was last seen in Bay St. Louis at last year's Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Festival, where he and his washboard, Nadine, mesmerized a large crowd of children and adults, alike.

Cloaked in frog masks and feverishly playing a variety of noise makers, the crowd was led around the festival grounds by Thomas, who was dressed as King of the Nutria-Frogs.

The performance, benefitting the Hancock County Children's Book Bank, will be 11 a.m. at Bookends Bookstore on Highway 90 near the Bay St. Louis car bridge.

Those attending are asked to bring unwanted children's books to donate to the Children's Book Bank. They will be distributed to needy children.

The Book Bank is operated in conjunction with the Hancock County Food Pantry.

County approves repairs on parts of Beach Road

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has agreed to more temporary repairs on Beach Road.

According to County Engineer Larry Seal, who has been working on plans for repair of the road while an engineering firm, Brown and Mitchell, is working on the problems of repairing the sand beach itself, an overlay might be more effective right now than repaving.

Representatives of the Mississippi Bureau of Geology, recently renamed Department of Environmental Quality, also appeared before the board Monday, discussing a search for a source of offshore sand of proper quality for beach replenishment.

They recommended that two sources be located in a two-phase project involving a seismic survey and Bill Mitchell, representing Brown and Mitchell, said a second source of sand near the north end of the project will be useful in making the entire project more cost effective.

With the department's assistance, Brown and Mitchell is expected to complete a feasibility study on sand sources in November.

Seal said he feels the study is necessary and had intended to start some of the road work while waiting for it, but he has found only about $500,000 is left in the county seawall fund at this point in the fiscal year.

"At this point, it looks like we're going to have to delay something," the engineer said, explaining that he was under the impression more money was available.

However, he added, "We've got to do something with the road even if the beach isn't in there yet."

Seal said he feels delaying the actual repaving of the road would be the most effective way to save money and insure permanence of the repairs, pointing out that the road itself will be more protected once the sand beach is reconstructed.

Concurring with Seal's opinion were Mitchell and John Seafide Jr., who represented the Hancock County Beachfront Technical Advisory Council.

One problem with the idea of repaving is the conflicting opinions Seal has received about a stabilizing fabric developed by Phillips Petroleum, which has reportedly been used elsewhere with success but is not favorably viewed by federal agencies which might become involved in permits or funding for the Beach Road project.

While he waits for the answer to Brown and Mitchell's questions on sand supplies, more money in the tax fund and more information about the stabilizing fabric, Seal said an overlay would make the road more useable.

The overlay can be applied, along with minimum base repairs, to areas between Washington Street and Bayou Cadet on a "worst need" basis. The engineer estimated the cost of the overlay at between $35,000 and $40,000 per mile and the cost of permanent repair at about $80,000 per mile.

The board authorized Seal to begin drawing plans and specifications for the overlay, allowing the engineer to use his discretion in choosing where the work should be done.

The board's next meeting is a bid opening set for 9 a.m. July 11 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock Courthouse.

Slidell man drowns in "Blue Hole"

BY D.C. HARVILL

A Slidell man drowned Saturday at a popular swimming spot in the Stennis Space Center buffer zone.

James L. Reese, 35, was swimming in the "Blue Hole" at about 10:15 p.m. when the drowning occurred, according to Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda.

The "Blue Hole" is a pond near the intersection of Interstate 10 and Highway 607, that was excavated when the interstate was constructed.

"From what I understand, he was swimming with his girl friend to a stump at the middle of the pond. She said he was about 15 feet behind her, but, when she got to the stump and looked back, he was gone. Reportedly, he was a good swimmer," Hoda said.

The body was recovered slightly after midnight by Constable Gary Bennett and Bureau of Marine Resources Officer Andy Elchos. Hancock County Medical Examiner Harold Stiglet pronounced Reese dead at the scene.

The death has been ruled an accidental drowning, Hoda said.

Hancock per capita income registers 4.28% increase

Mississippi's per capita income increased 6.36 percent in 1987, compared to U.S. growth of 5.99 percent. In the previous four years, Mississippi's per capita income had been growing more slowly than U.S. figures.

Total personal income, however, showed stronger growth in the nation than in the state, since U.S. population increased about one percent while Mississippi's population experienced no growth.

In 1987, Hinds County had the highest county per capita income in the state, at $13,381, while Jefferson County had the lowest figure, at $6,617.

Four—Humphreys, Issaquena, Sharkey and Tunica—showed more than a 20 percent increase in per capita income from 1986 to 1987, primarily because of the great improvement in farm income in those areas. Per capita income declined in 1987 in only three of Mississippi's 82 counties:

Leake, Smith and Simpson.

Nonmetropolitan counties boosted their per capita incomes by 7.07 percent, while per capita income in metropolitan counties grew by only 4.88 percent.

SBA to sponsor small business start-up workshops

Individuals interested in becoming entrepreneurs in south Mississippi will have an opportunity to overview the factors involved in starting a small business at the USM Small Business Development Center's "Thinking About Going Into Business?" workshop.

This workshop introduces prospective entrepreneurs to the potential hazards and joys of owning a small business.

Topics include: how to decide if your business idea is feasible; legal considerations of entrepreneurship; formulating a business plan; federal, state and local requirements; and small business finance.

While not a comprehensive review of the elements of starting a small business, the "Thinking About Going Into Business?" workshop gives prospective entrepreneurs a better sense of direction in their efforts, and will enable them to obtain further assistance should they decide to "take the plunge" by starting their own business.

The July session will be at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, July 12 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Registration fee is $10 which covers the cost of printing the materials.

Interested persons should call the SBDC at 865-4574 to reserve their place and materials for the program. The workshop is co-sponsored by the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce.

For a healthy meal—try fish on the grill

Americans are grilling with more frequency. And they are enjoying more non-traditional items on the grill, such as fresh vegetables and seafood, stemming from consumer desire for healthier low fat foods, and the increasing variety of fish from all over the world.

"Some of the best protein items for the grill include fish steaks, such as salmon, tuna, shark, swordfish and halibut," says Jean Marie Josselin, named "America's Best Seafood Chef" for 1988.

"Fish steaks cook quickly and can easily be substituted for one another in recipes or served in combination to add more variety to your grill," adds Chef Josselin.

Marine Josselin, who is also a chef at the American Seafood Festival, says that the most popular fish steaks are salmon, tuna, swordfish and halibut. She also says that the most popular seafood items on the grill are shrimp, lobster, crab and scallops.

When grilling fish, Josselin says, it is important to use a thermometer to check the internal temperature of the fish. She says that the internal temperature of the fish should be 145 degrees Fahrenheit. She also says that the fish should be cooked for 10 minutes per inch of thickness.

Timing is crucial when it comes to cooking fish. The general guideline for cooking fish is about 10 minutes per inch of thickness at 450 degrees F. Fish is done when it just begins to flake easily when tested with a fork and the watery, translucent appearance of raw fish takes on an opaque cast throughout.

However, the point between doneness and overdoneness occurs quickly. Therefore, it is important to keep a watchful eye on the fish, checking it frequently, and 2-3 minutes before expected cooking time is complete to prevent overcooking. It is important to remember that not all species of fish cook in the same amount of time and that the 10 Minute Rule is only a guideline to approximate cooking time.

If you want to prepare moist and juicy steaks on the grill like America's Best Seafood Chef, try Chef Josselin's recipes for Grilled Salmon and Two Color Tuna and Ginger Relish, Grilled Marinated Tuna with Parsley Vinaigrette and Grilled Marinated Red Snapper with Lemon Grass and Basil.

part to determine approximate cooking time; place in a glass dish. Peel off tough outer layers of lemon grass; thinly slice the tender, pale yellow portion to yield about 1/4 cup. Place in food processor and process until finely chopped. Add basil and pulse on and off until finely chopped. Add oil slowly through the feed tube. Stir in red pepper and pepper. Spread over fish, coating all sides. Refrigerate until ready to use.

Place fish on hot, well-oiled grill 4 to 5 inches above hot coals. Grill about 3 minutes per side or just until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork, allowing a total cooking time of approximately 10 minutes per inch thickness of fish. Transfer to plates and garnish with basil sprigs. Makes 4 servings.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire

As many of us have experienced, the hot dogs and hamburgers and other tidbits that are served at the house, since the rains lessened many of the Fourth of July celebrations, but use up all the supplies bought, for expected company!

For them—I always like to have a large supply of hot dogs and hamburgers on hand, for the Fourth of July and some assorted condiments and crackers, Gulf Coast residents and hostesses are always busy when family and friends are here.

supply and so began that sandwich classic.

For a super-easy, good hors d'oeuvre, try:

JANICE LOGAN'S 'HOT' HOT DOG TIDBITS

1 (12 oz.) can beer
2 Tblsp. finely chopped Jalapeno pepper
1 tsp. Tabasco
1/2 cup hot Barbecue Sauce
1 pkg. hot dogs cut into one-inch pieces

Mix all ingredients in a shallow pan and marinate in the refrigerator overnight. Pour into a medium-size saucepan and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes or until hot. Serve with toothpicks.

Another long-time favorite around my house is:

SMOKEY LINKS AND HOT DOGS

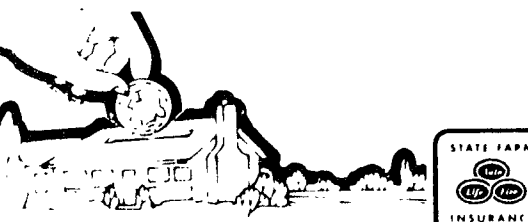

1 lb. smoked sausage links
1 lb. hot dogs
1 (20 oz.) jar cherry jelly (or other of your choice)
1/4 cup catsup
3 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cornstarch
1 Tblsp. soy sauce

Drain pineapple and reserve syrup. Combine syrup with jelly, catsup, cloves, cinnamon and salt, and heat to boiling. Dissolve the cornstarch in enough liquid to make a smooth paste, and stir into the boiling mixture, cooking until clear and thick.

Add the pineapple and soy sauce. Cut the sausages and hot dogs into slices, and add just before serving. I sometimes use tiny cocktail smoked sausages as well, and add green pepper rings before serving.

Jehovah's Witnesses convention to open Friday in Biloxi Coliseum

The three-day "Godly Devotion" district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses will open Friday at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi with more than 7,000 delegates present representing 41 Mississippi and Louisiana congregations.

J. O. Mason, convention chairman, will open the meeting speaking on the subject: "Welcome You People of Godly Devotion."

The meeting is part of a series of 132 conventions scheduled in different locations in the United States this summer with a combined attendance of 1,370,000 persons.

Symposiums are scheduled for Friday afternoon and are designed for parents and youths. They address the problem of parent-child relationships in times of great change.

Maurice Johnson will discuss "Parents—Accept Your Moral Responsibilities" and Earl Harden reviews the topic "Parents, Give Your Children a Spiritual Heritage."

In a talk entitled "Questions—Answers That Work," C. S. Gillard will give practical suggestions specifically to youths on "You and Your Peers," "School and Work," "Sex and Morals," "The Trap of Drugs and Alcohol," and "Your Future."

The keynote address is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. The subject will be "Why Learn the Sacred Secret of Godly Devotion?"

Speaker is August Wenzel.

Convention manager Gillard said the overall program is designed to pinpoint the dramatic changes evident in modern society and the reluctance of many people to resist changes that violate the principles of God as outlined in the Bible.

"The program will be direct and thought-provoking," Gillard said. "We must face the facts. Just because everybody's doing it doesn't make it right."

Opportunities, challenges outlined by Methodist superintendents

The 12 district superintendents of The Mississippi Conference of The United Methodist Church, making their annual report to the conference, challenged the churches to respond to blessings and opportunities before them.

The Rev. Jack King, Tupelo, and the Rev. John Ed Thomas, East Jackson, co-deans of the cabinet, reported for the superintendents.

Speaking first of the merger of the two conferences in Mississippi in terms of a marriage, the report states that, "As in marriage or any union, maturity, commitment, sacrifice, kindness, gentleness, patience, responsibility, fidelity, these virtues and disciplines will see us through. United as one, we look forward to a long and wonderful life together."

Among the opportunities to which the conference was called to respond are: to make a concerted effort to fulfill merger agreements; express appreciation for successful pensions crusades; to focus on churches recapturing the vision of servanthood; develop the cluster concept of mission and ministry; promote new church development; to enable and train volunteers to work in project dealing with illiteracy, drugs, alcohol, teen pregnancies, gangs and other social problems; to speak out against violence, sexism, racism and divisive groups.

Also, (as superintendents) to work with the bishop in ways that are caring, sensitive and responsible; to turn the tide in membership; and to repent of sins, seek forgiveness and reconciliation where hurt or misunderstanding may have occurred.

BACK TO NATURE

Return of Screech Owl was eagerly awaited

By LYDIA SCHULTZ

Owls and predators in general have always had a special place in my heart. I can't explain why. Is it their eyes, grace or cunning? Is it the mysteries that have surrounded them? Is it their majestic strengths that are so apparent in the swoop of the kill; one life sacrificed for another to live?

Is it the fact that they have been so totally misunderstood in past decades, only now to have us come around to realize their necessary existence in the food chain? We do need them.

All of this lays the groundwork for my excitement when I stepped out my front door several weeks ago. I was greeted with the chatter of ten tiny birds: nuthatches, chickadees and titmice. They were greatly disturbed.

After enjoying their closeness and disregard for me for several minutes I checked further and found an owl nestled in the darkness of the leaves of the small live oak. It was only six feet from me. Its large yellow, sage eyes blinking occasionally.

A Common Screech Owl, as it is listed in the field guides, is small in comparison to others found in our area. It is 7-10 inches long. They come in two colors: the gray phase and the red-brown or rufous phase. I was looking at a gray phase that day.

In the following week I didn't see "my" owl but I heard it. I assumed that the soft whinnying sounds were coming from across the street until one day my husband came in and announced the presence of an owl in the cedar tree. We checked and there were two.

Let me back track and tell you that two years ago I had owls nesting in an old woodpecker box that has been in my yard for several years. Unfortunately one of the owls was killed by a car. That is frequently how "screeches" get killed as they go after large insects which are attracted by the lights of oncoming cars.

I was told later that while these birds are monogamous and mate for life, when that happens, the one bird left will find another mate and return to the old nest site.

So last year I suffered through the knowledge of squirrels in my owl's box, hoping that one day the owls would return.

The cedar tree they were perched in is only 50 feet in front of that box so I knew the signs were good. One bird was returning to share the box with its new mate.

Within a few days, only one owl was left in the cedar tree all day. The female had moved to the box to lay and incubate her eggs. The male was left to guard the box during the day and search for food and feed the female by night.

The other birds in the yard were adapting. Blue jays object the most still and the mockingbirds will occasionally squawk. But the others seem less threatened. After all, the favorite food for these small predators is rats and field mice.

What a show the male has put on. He is a beautiful rufous phase and at dusk he will occasionally fly to the front of the box, clinging to it for a few seconds, and then fly off.

Neither of the owls seem to have much fear of us. Screeches are docile and friendly owls. This I can now attest to as they seem unconcerned with us as the female peers out the box at us and he from the limbs above.

I will let you know if and how many owlets emerge.

That special time of the year is approaching when the hummingbirds start moving South through Mississippi to Mexico and Central America. We have had numerous reports for the last two weeks of early arrivals. Much earlier than in the years past.

I had one arrive Sunday evening. It was gone by Monday a.m. but the plants were in full bloom and it sampled all of them.

Remember a few things: clean the feeders every week with bleach and rinse well.

No honey. It is a killer for hummingbirds. The mixture they drink is one part sugar to four parts boiled water. Or you can use the prepackaged mix.

Thought for this month: Predators have a purpose on this earth and are just as beautiful as songbirds.

Waveland Library features July 6 special program

An indoor beachcombing activity and Japanese fish painting art will be the featured events during the summer reading program at the Waveland Public Library on July 6 beginning at 10 a.m.

The special program will be presented by Julie Ramos-Pelcher and Cindy Leard, trained volunteers from the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquariums, a branch of the Gulf Coast Research laboratory.

Also planned is an activity designed to teach the damaging effects of marine litter on marine life and the environment.

"We will be preparing for our Awards Day for the week of July 10," said Prima Wusnaek, library director, "so we urge all children participating in the program to finish reading their books in order to meet their reading goals for the summer."

More information on the program is available by calling the Bay St. Louis Library at 467-5282, the Kiln Library at 255-1724, and the Waveland Library at 467-9240.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1989-1B

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

I saw a wonderful new sport this weekend I think should be continued—crab racing!

For those of you who didn't attend the Crab Festival, participants could pay a fee to sponsor a crab, name it and enter it in a race. After a number was taped to its back, each crab was dropped into the starting gate, a bottomless laundry basket overturned in the middle of a big round table.

When the gate was lifted, the first crab to make it to the edge of the table and fall off was declared the winner.

With exciting commentary from Beau Gex and Gene Taylor, the races made a hilarious event I think is great for fund-raisers. I laughed so much I'd like to see it again and I know many of the other spectators were just as tickled by it as I was.

Turning to less unusual sports but still talking about those affiliated with summer festivals, the fourth annual St. Rose de Lima Parish Fair Tennis Tournament is being played this weekend at the Bay High and St. Stanislaus tennis courts.

The event is Saturday and Sunday and includes men's singles and doubles and women's singles and doubles, with all categories open.

Today is the last day to enter and the deadline is 5 p.m. Fees are $10 for singles and $18 for doubles. Information is available from Myron Labat at 467-3732 or Brian Labat at 467-5274.

Congratulations to young Brenan Compretta of Bay St. Louis on placing third in longest hit competition at University of Mississippi Baseball Camp.

If any other local youngsters receive honors at summer sports camps, The Sea Coast Echo would like to hear about them.

For those of you who follow sailing, a number of Bay-Waveland and Pass Christian yacht club members are competing in U.S. Yacht Racing Union semifinals this coming weekend.

They include Peter Merrifield and Rene Dupacquier in the Mallory Cup and Ellen Eagan, Judy McKinney and Missy Breath in the Adams Cup.

We also have a number of local juniors in three competitions, Wayne Murphy, Mark Carter and Nick Walker in the Sears Cup; Kevin Northrup and Jennifer Penneguy in the Beamis Cup; and Robert Prince in the Smythe Cup.

Excellence in sailing has been one of the trademarks of our local yacht clubs in the past, highlighted by wins in prestigious events including the Lipton Regatta, and we wish these competitors good luck in continuing that tradition.

A benefit golf tournament, the 37th annual Mental Health Association Team Championship, will be Saturday and Sunday at Broadwater Sun Golf Course.

Registration information is available from the Mental Health Association in Harrison County at 864-6274 or Jeff Bennett, tournament chairman, at 863-1132. The tournament field is limited to the first 100 teams to enter.

Diamondhead Swim Team took five firsts last week against the Bayou Bluff Bulldogs. In addition, the local swimmers took second place in 14 individual and two relay events and picked up third in six individuals and one relay.

The team's next competition will be a relay meet Tuesday at the Biloxi city natatorium near Biloxi High School. Warm-ups begin at 4:30 p.m. with competition to follow.

Coach Lonnie Ray invites the public to come to the meet and support the team. I think the swimmers are doing quite well for a team in its very first season, but like any new team, they do need someone to cheer them on!

Don't forget! The Sea Coast Echo can run sports and sports-related items for you in Time Out. To submit items either bring them by our office by Tuesday, preferably before noon, or call Dena Bisnette at 467-5474. You're also welcome to mail them in, but be sure you send them early enough that they'll arrive here by Tuesday.

Right now, we are particularly interested in obtaining scores and information on local summer sports programs. With several events each week, we know there are some folks out there who can't get to all of them but would enjoy reading about them.

Local sailors competing in USYRU semifinals

BY DENA BISNETTE
Several local teams will be competing in the U.S. Yacht Racing Union's semifinals this weekend.

The Gulf Coast Yachting Association men's team, skippered by Peter Merrifield of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, will travel to Charleston, S.C. Saturday and Sunday to sail J-22's in the race for the Mallory Cup, a Bay-Waveland Yacht Club representative stated. The crew includes Rene Dupacquier.

The ladies' team will be sailing Lightnings in the race for the Adams Cup, which is being hosted by Bay-Waveland Yacht Club. Ellen Eagan will be skipper with her crew including Judy McKinney and Missy Breath.

Three junior competitions are included in the semifinals.

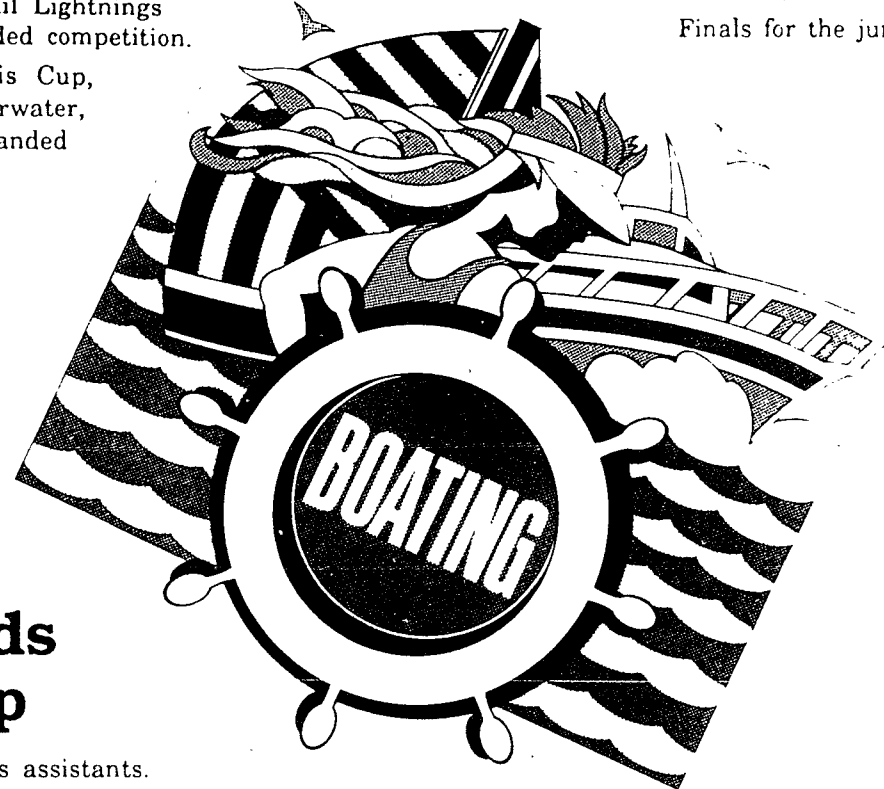

They are the Sears Cup in Clearwater, Fla., where skipper Wayne Murphy and crew members Mark Carter and Nick Walker, all St. Stanislaus students, will sail Lightnings in triple-handed competition.

The Beamis Cup, also in Clearwater, is a double-handed competition featuring 420s. A Pass Christian Yacht Club

Robert Prince, representing the Pass Christian Yacht Club, will sail a Laser in the single-handed competition for the Symthe Cup.

Golf tournament slated by Mental Health Assn.

The 37th annual Mental Health Association Team Championship will be played on Saturday and Sunday, July 15 and 16 at the Broadwater Sun Course.

According to Jeff Bennett, chairman of the tournament, there will be a men and women's division with a four-ball for the men and select shot format for the women.

The tournament, which is the original golf tournament on the Coast, is held each year to raise funds to help promote mental health programs and provide educational materials.

This year's mental health theme is 'Remember the Children,' and Ada Reid, executive coordinator of the Mental Health Association in Harrison County, points out that more than eight million children—15 percent of the younger generation—suffer from a mental or emotional disorder, and approximately 70 to 80 percent are not receiving appropriate care.

To register or for additional information, call the Mental Health Association in Harrison County at 864-6274 or Jeff Bennett at the Mental Health Center at 863-1132.

Bassin' with the pros

Stay alert for slow summer bass

It's summertime. The weather's warm and the bass are slow. The problem is not catching fish, but simply staying alert enough to feel a strike when it happens.

"It's a tough problem," admits Johnson Pro Staff member Charlie Reed, winner of the 1986 Bass Masters Classic. "There have been times when I could have actually gone to sleep while I was standing up fishing."

The greatest aid in combating the fishing doldrums, says Reed, is experience. Fish don't bite more than they bite, so you simply learn to expect long lulls during a day on the water.

"There are some lakes where you may only get one strike every two hours," he says. "You prepare yourself for this mentally, and keep telling yourself a bass is going to bite each time you make a cast. Then, when it finally happens, you're ready."

Reed also offers several other suggestions for staying alert on the water. Among them are standing to fish rather than sitting, changing activities, dressing comfortably for the weather, eating properly, and staying physically fit.

"If you'll notice," says the Johnson angler, "I stand all the pros stand all the time."

Long, of course, can be a challenge, but Reed says that if you're not physically fit, you won't be mentally fit, and if you don't eat or sleep well, you alert.

"When you're sitting, you become too comfortable, and then it's easy to lose concentration."

Changing activities also helps, Reed explains, simply because it exercises different muscles and makes you think about something else, however briefly.

"I suggest stepping to the back of the boat and studying a map, getting a drink of water, or simply putting a rod in the rod locker and then getting it back out," says Reed. "You can also crank up your outboard and move to a new location."

"It doesn't take much of a change, just something to alter the routine of casting for a few minutes."

Dressing comfortably is extremely important, Reed emphasizes, because it makes you feel better while you're fishing. The Johnson pro recommends wearing cotton material because it's cooler. If you take precautions to avoid sunburn, shorts can also be recommended.

"I also believe it's important to be physically fit, to eat well, and get a good night's rest before a long day on the water," Reed adds.

"If you're not physically fit, you won't be mentally fit, and if you don't eat or sleep well, you certainly won't feel like concentrating."

Reed performs light calisthenics each morning before fishing, and enjoys walking or swimming when time permits. He also prefers to eat an early dinner, get at least eight hours sleep, and then start the day with a full breakfast. He doesn't eat lunch while fishing, and he drinks only water.

The service experts at OMC recommend bass boaters and other high performance enthusiasts install an engine water pressure gauge on their boat. Outboards can lose water pressure if the motor is trimmed or raised too high, or if the water intake is covered with weeds or mud.

Loss of water pressure can lead to overheating. A water pressure gauge gives earlier warning of trouble than an engine temperature gauge.

Junior Paramedic program offered at Slidell Memorial

Slidell Memorial Hospital's Emergency-1 coordinator Sandy Dubaz is finalizing plans for a community education campaign which will teach emergency and first basics to 'Junior Paramedics.'

The program, provided free of charge to youths aged four to 14, and Dubaz have an impressive track record.

Dubaz was a 'Junior Paramedic' instructor on the Gulf Coast and during a one-year period, granted 'J.P.' status to more than 2,000 young Mississippi residents.

The number exposed to emergency/first aid basics (reporting an emergency; stranger safety, clearing the airway, conducting the Heimlich maneuver, etc.) is, in actuality, at least twice that amount, because in order to earn a J.P. certificate and badge, a student must return an informational flyer to their instructor completed by their parents/guardians. "Basically, they have to teach their Moms and Dads what they learned," Dubaz explained.

The Junior Paramedic programs last for 15-20 minutes and are adaptable for scouts, kindergarten, elementary and junior high school students. "They're for anyone who would like to increase their safety, 911, and emergency awareness," Dubaz said, continuing, "My goal is to have everyone under the age of 14 become a Junior Paramedic."

While four may seem to some a young age to teach a skill such as the Heimlich maneuver, Dubaz explains that children, aged four and greater have very advanced levels of er accidentally swallowed a household cleanser containing lye. You should:

a. Give her ipecac syrup to induce vomiting.

b. Give her lemon juice to neutralize the chemical.

c. Give her a glass of milk or water.

1-c. Corrosive substances such as lye should be diluted with water or milk, not regurgitated. Lemon juice is an acid which may neutralize the chemical, but it may also generate heat.

Prominently post the number of your poison control center, and have the container in front of you when calling. After administering first aid, rush the victim, along with the poison container, if possible, to the nearest emergency room.

2. You burn your arm while carrying a pot of boiling water. The area is red and swollen and several blisters have formed. You should:

a. Place your arm under cold running water for 15 minutes, cleanse with soap and water, and apply a sterile gauze pad.

b. Prick open the blisters with a sterilized needle and coat the entire area with a soothing oil.

c. Apply ice wrapped in a clean cloth to the burn.

1-a. Oil can irritate the area, and breaking the blister increases the risk of infection. Ice can damage tissue. For second-degree burns as described above, seek medical attention if the burn is larger than two or three centimeters, or is located on the hands, face remove a tick from a person or a pet is to place the glowing tip of a match, blown out, as close to the tick as possible. When the tick falls off, wash the area with soap and water.

By removing the tick with your fingers, you risk the tick attaching itself to you; by removing the tick with tweezers, you risk not removing the tick's entire body from the victim. Both tactics can cause further infection.

4. Your neighbor has cut her arm with a kitchen knife and is bleeding profusely. You should:

a. Apply a tourniquet above the cut and loosen it every 15 minutes.

b. Have her raise her arm over her head and apply pressure directly over the cut with a clean cloth.

c. Immediately cleanse the wound to prevent serious infection.

4-b. Before worrying about infection, it is necessary to control the bleeding. Tourniquets are used only as a last resort.

If direct pressure is applied for 10 minutes and the bleeding persists, then it is necessary to apply the pressure at the arterial pulse closest to the wound, between the wound and the heart.

5. Your child is experiencing difficulty breathing and is gasping for breath. You realize that he has possibly choked on a piece of candy or food. You should:

a. Turn the child upside down and give a few rapid blows between the shoulder blades.

Senior Center

Located in the Valena C. Jones Bldg. at 301 Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis, the center serves Hancock County citizens 60 plus years of age.

Under the Hancock County Human Resource Agency, the center provides classes in ceramics, macrame, art, quilting, counted cross stitch, silk flowers, Christmas ornaments, framing, wood working and various other crafts. A morning snack is provided with donations from various clubs and businesses.

The center has a contract to provide 30 home delivered meals a day to those seniors who cannot provide for themselves, and 35 meals for those who have a need for a hot well-balanced meal daily in the cafeteria at the center.

Transportation is provided through a contract with Coast Area Transportation for most seniors in the county to bring them into the center, or to take them to the grocery, doctor, etc.

The contract with Methodist Senior Services provides two homemakers for about two hours a week to homebound, needy seniors to do light house-keeping or errands for them.

For more information, call the center at 467-9292 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1989-1C

Apollo 11

Stennis Space Center to celebrate moon mission

Special to the Echo
NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County will open its doors to the public from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, July 16, to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the July 16, 1969 historic Apollo 11 liftoff which took the first men to the moon.

engines designed for ground-testing purposes only are also tested continuously to refine and improve the performance of flight engines.

Speaking during the celebration will be Stennis Space Center Director Roy Estess, who joined NASA in 1966 as a propulsion test engineer during the Saturn V rocket, is on display at the Stennis Center. One F-1 engine produced 1.5 million pounds of thrust.

Those attending open house will receive mementos such as

Apollo 11 commemorative cards with Stennis Space Center lapel pins; Apollo 11 photographs; an Apollo 11 message from NASA Administrator and Mississippi native Rear Adm. Richard Truly; color photographs and fact sheets of the Space Shuttle main engine; and Stennis Center fact sheets.

For children, there will be Apollo 11 anniversary coloring books, SSC balloons, patch decals and space Station comic Books.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind."

Neil Armstrong, July 20, 1969

Special events planned for the entire family will include hot air balloon rides (weather permitting), a guest appearance by Apollo 14 astronaut Stuart Roosa, a storytime for children, space suit demonstrations, model rocket launches, and extensive bus tours of the center. Continuous video footage of the Apollo era will be shown in the Visitors Center auditorium. The public is invited free of charge.

The Stennis space Center will join NASA centers around the nation in celebration of the historic mission which climaxed July 20, 1969, when American astronauts Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin set foot on lunar soil while Michael Collins circled the moon in the command module.

All first and second stages of the Saturn V rocket for the Apollo manned lunar landing program were flight certified at the Stennis Center.

The program began with a static firing on April 23, 1966 and continued into the early 1970s. All Apollo space vehicle boosters performed without failure.

The space Shuttle main engine test program has been underway since 1975. All main engines used to power the orbiter during the first eight-and-a-half minutes of flight are tested at Stennis.

Research and development

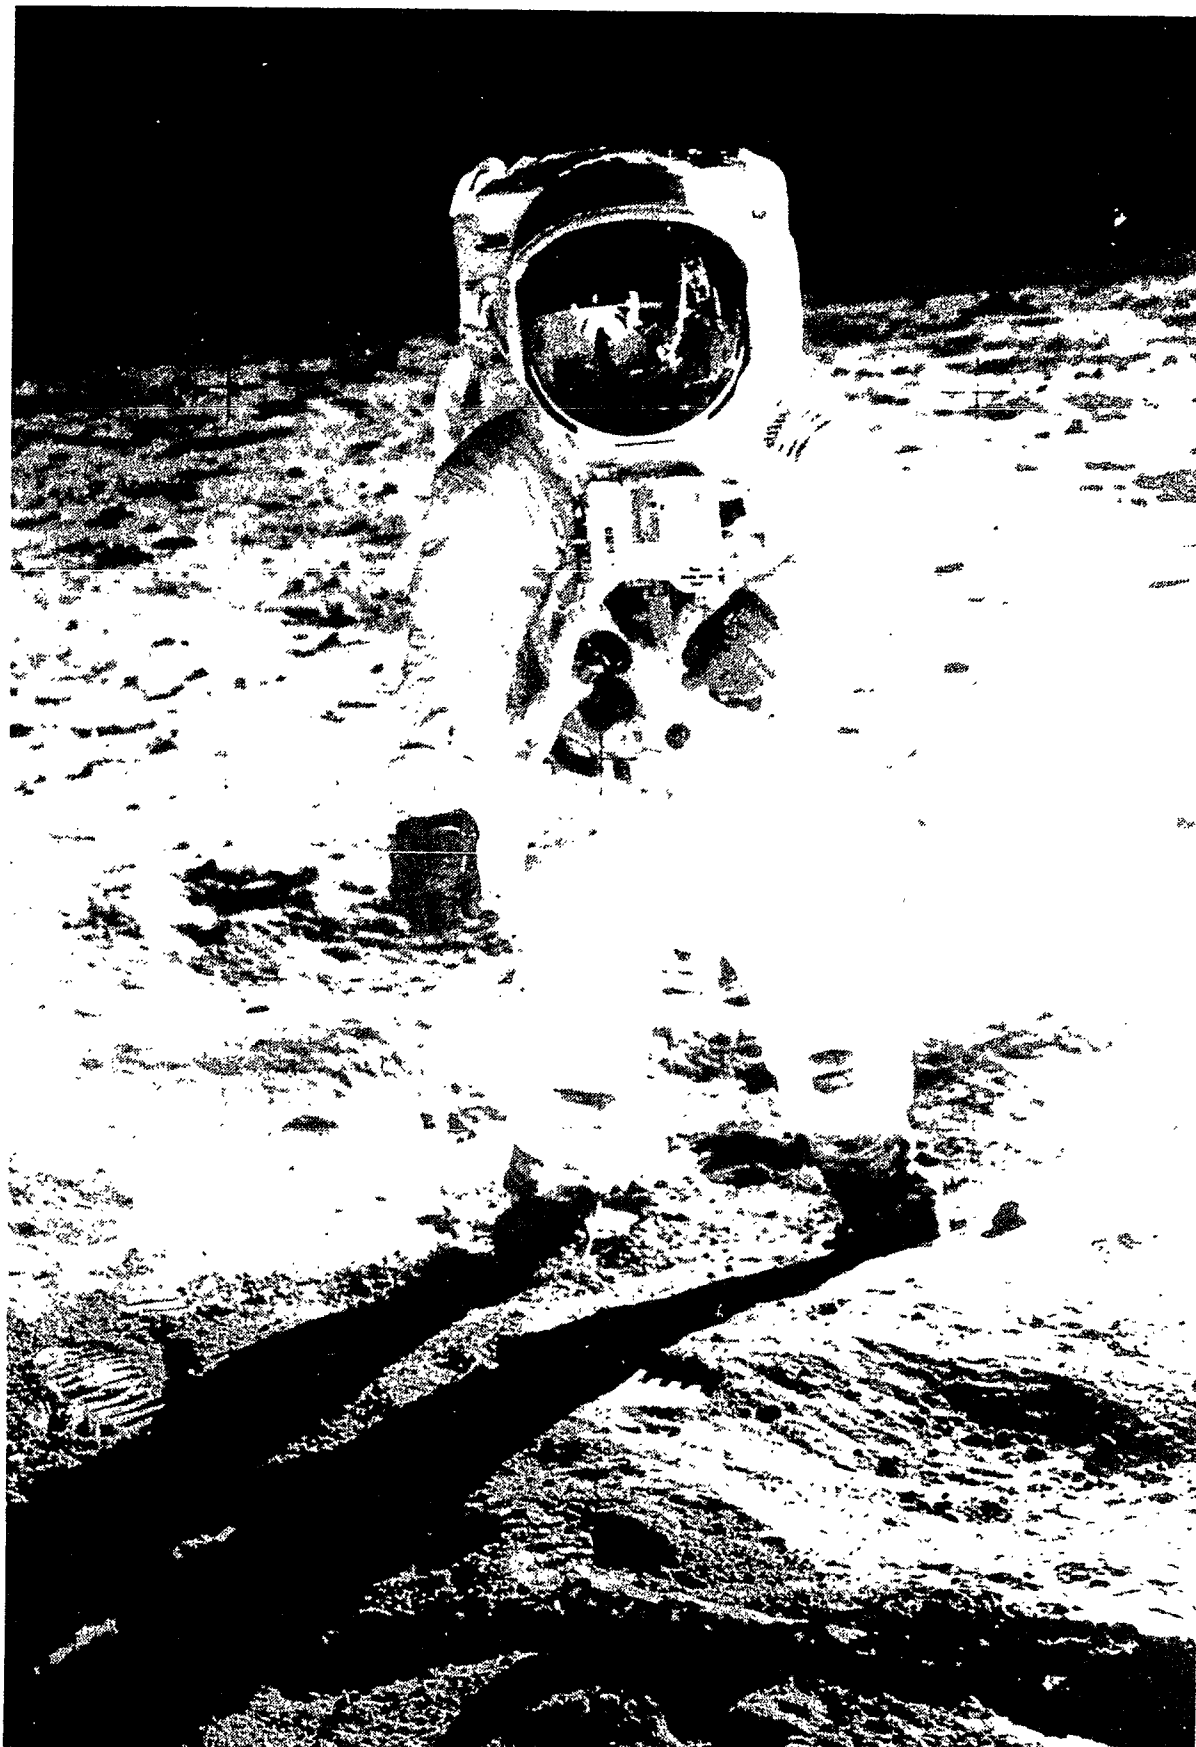

Apollo program, and Roosa of Gulfport, who along with astronauts Alan Shepard and Edgar Mitchell, completed the third lunar landing during the Apollo 14 mission Jan. 31 through Feb. 9, 1971.

Events planned during open house include bus tours departing every 15 minutes for the test complex, where the first and second stages of the Saturn V moon rocket were tested during the Apollo era; the U.S. naval Oceanographic Office's Maury Oceanographic Library, which houses one of the world's foremost collections of oceanographic materials; and the Bio-home, a futuristic home which uses aquatic plants to solve indoor air pollution and waste treatment problems on Earth and for potential use on Space Station.

NASA personnel will conduct demonstrations of remote sensing applications in the Stennis Center's Science and Technology Laboratory computer facility.

Space suit demonstrations will take place each hour at the Command Module in the picnic area next to the Visitors Center. Stennis personnel will be stationed at various locations to give lectures about exhibits and the Stennis Center's role in America's space program.

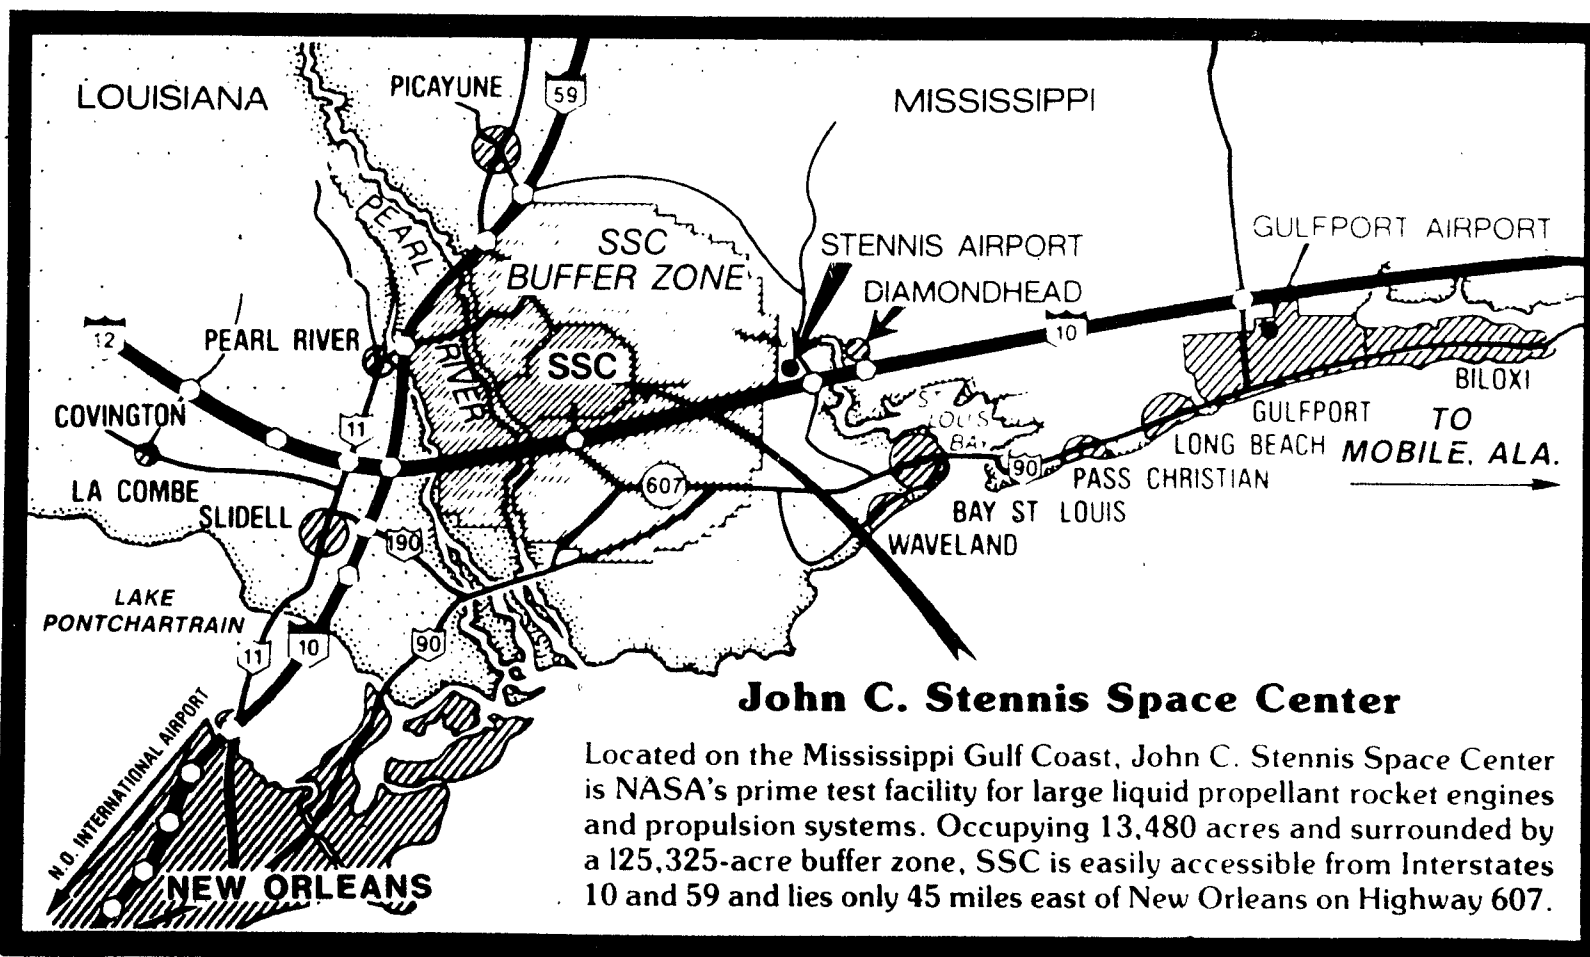

The powerful F-1 engine, which flew in a cluster of five to power the first stage of the ORIGINAL MOONWALK—Astronaut Edwin Aldrin Jr., lunar module pilot, walks near the lunar module during the Apollo 11 extravehicular activity. The photo was taken by Astronaut Neil Armstrong, Apollo 11 commander, July 20, 1969.

TEST FIRING—Just moments before an actual test firing, engineers and technicians in the Stennis Space Center's Test Control Center monitor each component and associated system before the test can begin. The center will be open to the public at the open house July 16.

Make the world a more beautiful place—share a plant with a friend

By Dr. Milo Burnham

Extension Service

It's a rare gardener indeed who won't share with other gardeners. Information and experiences are the easiest to share, and all of us are probably guilty of sometimes going overboard when it comes to giving advice and relating our experiences.

When it comes to giving away plants, however, some gardeners aren't as generous as others. Fortunately, the non-sharers are in the minority. If this wasn't the case, the plant "pass along" activities organized by Felder Rushing, extension area horticulturist in the Jackson metropolitan area, wouldn't be as successful as he tells me they are.

Wondering why some people won't share plants, I've decided that in a lot of cases, it's only a certain plant or group of plants that aren't given away freely, sort of like an old family recipe that is unique to your kitchen. Maybe there's a false sense of pride in the owning. Sometimes it may be because the plant is small, not yet fully established or was very expensive, and the owner wants to increase it for his own use before sharing it with others.

As a teenager back in my hometown in New Jersey, I knew a lady who bought all the newest, prize winning, most expensive roses. This lady was such an expert gardener that within three years of a new purchase, the plant needed dividing.

Not wanting to fill her garden with repeats and reduce the space for additional purchases, she destroyed everything she couldn't use herself. Typical northern attitude! No. She said she didn't give plants away because she felt they wouldn't receive the care they deserved, and she had no interest in starting a business to sell them.

Last spring while visiting several gardens in Charleston, S.C., I met a lady with several large flower pots overflowing with a striking, small, blue daisy with a bright yellow center. Seeing the plant, I just had to have it at all possible.

Reportedly I questioned the owner about the plant's source, growth habit and ease of propagation. After asking for it directly, not giving her every opportunity to offer me a cutting or a few seeds. No luck! That lady wasn't letting go of so much as a dry flower head.

As we got ready to leave and with my chances rapidly disappearing, a fellow tour member reached down, pinched off one small piece of the plant about 1 1/2 inches long and handed it to me. Overridden with guilt, but yet with a ray of hope that I now possessed the plant, I walked back to the hotel and placed the small cutting in water. I believe that lady and I both would have felt better if I had asked and had she willingly shared the plant with me.

As I walked out, the plant proved surprisingly easy to propagate and there are now four small flowering plants in pots in my yard. I've since identified the plant as being in the genus Hebe. I found a dictionary of cultivated plants by Liberty Hyde Bailey lists several species and with small, blue flowers. Seeds of two of the species are available commercially.

Like that Charleston blue daisy, many ornamental plants are relatively easy to propagate using cuttings. Late spring through early summer is the best time to take and root cuttings of azaleas, river birch, weigela, Japanese flowering quince, abelia and roses, to mention just a few.

With some plants like fat-sh and oakleaf hydrangea, rooting the cuttings is almost impossible. With some others, this is the wrong time of year to take cuttings. The basic requirements for success are a well-drained, rooting mix, high humidity and protection from more aids in rooting and in the quality of the roots formed. An excellent rooting medium can be made of 2 parts perlite and 1 part sphagnum peat by volume. A clear poly cover will keep the humidity and protect the cuttings from wind.

Now would be an excellent time to start cuttings of some of your favorite ornamental plants for sharing with other gardeners and plant lovers. A large part of the enjoyment of having is in being able to share.

How most people deal with the symptoms of a heart attack.

Hiding from a problem doesn't make it go away. In fact, hiding the symptoms of a heart attack can make the problem worse. Many people are not alert to heart attack symptoms. Chest pain and pressure are the most common. Pain may radiate down your arm, neck or shoulder. There's also shortness of breath. Cold sweat. Dizziness. Faintness and nausea.

Sometimes only a few symptoms occur. Sometimes more. Sometimes the symptoms can even be due to another problem.

Only one thing is certain. The sooner heart problems are treated the better your chance of recovery.

That's why we're here. The Heart Emergency Service at NorthShore Regional Medical Center is the first of its kind in this area. Located in the Emergency Department, we save lives by detecting heart problems rapidly and providing necessary treatment.

If you experience any symptoms of a heart attack, get immediate medical attention. Anytime, day or night, you can call our emergency 24-Hr. Heartline™ at 1-800-HEART-13. An emergency care professional is available around the clock to answer questions, give advice or even dispatch an ambulance if necessary.

24-Hr. Heartline
1-800-HEART-13

The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center offers a complete range of cardiac care services. That's important to you during those first critical hours following a heart attack. And although you'll probably never need them, it's good to know our heart team is available 24 hours a day.

We employ powerful clot-dissolving drugs that can save lives by stopping and, in some instances, actually reversing the effects of heart attack. The sooner these drugs are administered the better the chance of a complete recovery.

And advanced diagnostic capabilities, including our state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory, help us assess and treat heart problems more accurately and effectively than ever.

We also offer educational programs that help people prevent heart attacks, and rehabilitation services that help heart patients recover faster and more fully.

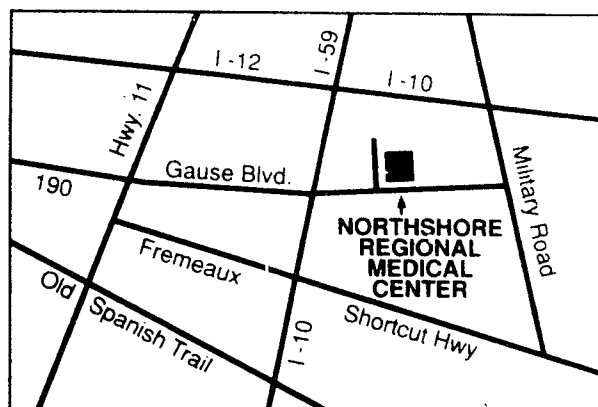

Learn more about The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center by calling (504) 641-MDMD and we'll send you a free brochure that describes our cardiac services in greater detail.

Remember, don't hide from any symptoms of a heart attack. Go to the nearest hospital emergency department. If you're close to NorthShore Regional Medical Center, use the Heart Emergency Service in our Emergency Department located just east of Interstate 10 on 190—Exit 266—Gause Boulevard. Or call 1-800-HEART-13. Don't hide. Seek help.
